It is with a great deal of pleasure that the Australian Soccer Federation welcomes Colombia as our guests for this two game series.

Colombia have a long reputation as being one of the world's most exciting and entertaining football nations. This two match series will enable all Australians to view the excitement and passion that is South American football and to gauge the strength of the Coca-Cola Socceroos against these giants of world football.

Colombia, of course, were present at the Finals of the World Cup whilst our Coca-Cola Socceroos were eliminated by Argentina.

In this series our friends and supporters will see a new look Coca-Cola Socceroos. There will be some familiar and some unfamiliar faces as the Australian Soccer Federation begins its build-up for the 1998 World Cup.

To our Colombian colleagues we extend the welcome of the Australian Soccer Federation and our best wishes for an enjoyable visit.

May the best team win and may the spirit of Fair Play help create the memories and magic that football is all about.

The on-going growth in Australian soccer is in no small part due to our sponsors who enable us to present these types of matches.

Our thanks, in particular, goes to Coca-Cola, the Australian Sports Commission, the Victorian Health Promotion Foundation, Optus and adidas for their continued support of Australian Soccer.

The British were the greatest exporters of sport throughout the world. Soccer was no exception but it had developed in different areas of the world in a totally different way to the original import. South America in particular has introduced a style of soccer which has made countries like Brazil, Argentina and Chile, not to mention Colombia, world famous. Whilst Colombia has not always had the same success as Argentina and Brazil they nevertheless showed their prowess prior to the World Cup, where they beat Argentina by 5 to nil in the preliminary competition. What is more, they did this whilst playing away from home.

The enthusiasm for Soccer in Colombia is absolutely enormous and has to be seen to be believed. From the time when the supporters arrive with painted faces, drums, trumpets and anything which will make a noise they produce a cacophony of sound which begins well before the match and never ceases for one moment until the final whistle.

World Cup. These countries constantly produce players of the class of Pele, Maradona and Valderrama. Their skills are a long way ahead of the old style soccer of kick and rush, charge to the goalkeeper and ball into the net, and the sliding defensive tackle, which have all been replaced with precision passing and positioning and the reading of the game like chess as opposed to draughts.

Australia got so close in 1994 to reaching the finals, trying to emulate the Coca-Cola Socceroos of 1974. These friendlies are therefore vital to Australia's build-up and give the home-based players the opportunity of facing world class opposition. They also gain experience of the style they must conquer in order to succeed. For these two matches Eddie Thomson, the national coach, has introduced some new-comers who will include the Wollongong Wolves captain Matthew Horsley and Adelaide City goalkeeper Jason Petkovic. Coca-Cola Olyroo goalkeeper Frank Juric gets his chance to impress while South Melbourne striker Con Boutsianis returns to the senior team. Coca-Cola Olyroos stars Kevin Muscat and Gabriel Mendez return to the senior team after they both made their debut on the Coca-Cola Socceroos Asian Tour last September.

In fact one Colombian described soccer in his home country as being a match of three halves. The first two halves are played in the normal way of soccer while the third half is that period of time until the next match starts because the national game is never far away from discussion and debate. It is essential that countries like Australia must be exposed more and more to the South American style of soccer if they are to have any chance of succeeding in the

SYDNEY 2000

With less than six years to go before the opening ceremony, preparations are already well underway in Sydney for the 2000 Olympic Games.

The Sydney Organising Committee for the Olympic Games (SOCOG) is working with the Australian Olympic Committee and the NSW State Government to ensure that Sydney stages a memorable and successful Games in the year 2000.

The Sydney Olympics will be the most centralised ever, with most competition taking place in two main zones. Sydney Olympic Park, along the western reaches of Sydney Harbour at Homebush Bay, will be the venue for 15 of the 27 sports on the Olympic program, including athletics, swimming and hockey. It will be the location for the Olympic Stadium, the Athletes Village and the Main Press Centre.

Eight sports will be played in the Sydney Harbour Zone, centred around Darling Harbour and adjacent to Sydney's central business district. The International Broadcast Centre, working home for the world's electronic media during the Games, will also be located in this zone.

Other sports will be played at Penrith Lakes (rowing and canoeing), Holsworthy (shooting) and Eastern Creek (equestrian).

Two-thirds of Sydney's Olympic venues are already built, and construction of new facilities is progressing well, with two world-standard sports venues — the Sydney International Athletic and Aquatic Centres — both opened at Sydney Olympic Park during 1994.

Sydney is committed to staging a Games where athletes can perform at their best.

For the first time in Olympic history, all of the 10,000 athletes coming to the Games will live together in a single village. Located at Sydney Olympic Park, most athletes will be able to walk to their competition venue and no athlete will have to travel more than 30 minutes to compete.

The Games will be held from Friday 15 September to Sunday 1 October 2000, during the spring. With dry, clear days, moderate temperatures and low humidity, weather conditions will be ideal for athletic performance.

Soccer is one of the Olympic sports which may be played in other National Centres as well as in Sydney.

Whilst this may still be vague the forward planning of the soccer playing administration is far more definite. The charge to the Olympics firstly in Atlanta and then Sydney is well underway as is a pathway to the World Cup in 1998.

The Coca-Cola Olyroos (Under 23) have already participated in the Four Nation Tournament against Denmark, Japan and Korea. All four teams will be involved in elimination qualifying matches this year. This tournament gave respective national coaches the opportunity to assess their potential squads albeit without their overseas based players.

The Coca-Cola Socceroos have friendly internationals in the early part of the year against Colombia, Japan and Ghana. Overseas based players will not be brought back to Australia for all matches giving a greater exposure to players in the local leagues.

To 2000. The National Coach and his assistants control the full levels of national sides. A potential squad is therefore already in the moulding whilst the Youth Development Plan will no doubt unearth further talent.

The success of the Coca-Cola Olyroos as fourth placegetters in the Olympics at Barcelona is well documented. All it needs now is to better that result.

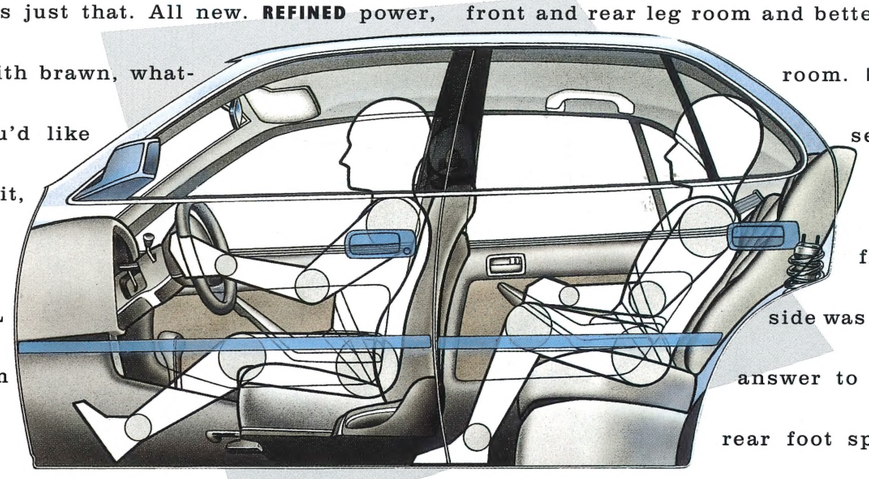
·PERSONAL SPACE· REINVENTED BY VIENTA

REGARDED by many as the most advanced Toyota ever sold in Australia, the all new Vienta is just that. All new. REFINED power, brain with brawn, whatever you'd like to call it, Vienta's V6, 3.0 L quad cam engine (with sequential multi-point EFI) is space age when compared to competitors. REVIEWERS the world over have delighted in actually having to check the instrumentation to tell whether the engine is running when first behind the wheel. REPOSITIONING Vienta's instrument panel has made this easy to do, with major controls focussed towards the driver, so everything falls straight to hand. Straight away. RETHINKING the interior meant lowering the floor and seating position, moving the driver pedals forward and the rear seating back. RESULT: new dimensions in personal space, more headroom, increased front and rear leg room and better shoulder room. RELOCATING seat mounts from the floor to the side was an elegant answer to improving rear foot space.



REMARKABLE what going back to basics can do, isn't it? REWORKING the air conditioning system led to another way of improving your environment: Vienta is the first CFC free, ozone-friendly car ever built in this country. REINFORCED one piece door pressings are another first in a locally built Toyota. RESTORE your faith in the future of the V6, book a test drive by calling 008 817 617 today. REDISCOVER the excitement of real space travel.

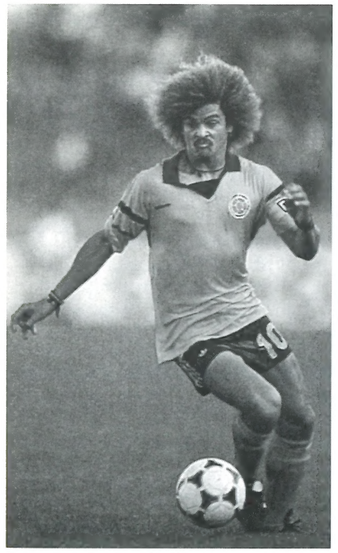
COLOMBIA 'A'

New National Coach Hernin Dario Gomez brings a comparatively new look side to Australia. Only two players who represented Colombia in the World Cup, Oscar Cordoba and Herman Gaviria are included in the touring party. However Rene Higuita, the rather spectacular goalkeeper of Colombia's 1990 appearance in the World Cup in Italy, is also included. The goalkeeper certainly drew attention to himself by being prepared to advance up field, take free kicks or penalties and being most spectacular in the saves he made. He in himself is an entertainment worth seeing.

René Higuita

Like Australia, who are not bringing back their overseas Coca-Cola Socceroos for this friendly series, so too Colombia are breaking new ground in their build up to the next World Cup.

Whilst Colombian Soccer only really came to the fore in 1948 they have, however, participated in three World Cups at the top level in 1962, 1990 and 1994. In the first two they finished in 14th position whilst in 1994 they were 19th. The build-up to the 1994 World Cup is of interest because it shows the pattern of development. The pre-selection for the preparation for that tournament commenced in January 1993 with thirty-three players being selected. Twenty-two players, under the captaincy of Carlos Alberto Valderrama, and team coach Francisco Maturana, went to the United States. Of the squad only sixteen players were utilised, of whom five were recruited back home from their playing clubs overseas. Sixteen of the players in the squad had participated in former FIFA competitions and had an average age of 27.5 years.



Carlos Valderrama

In the preliminary competition they played Paraguay on 1st August 1993 for a nil-all draw. On 8th August 1993 they played Peru for a 1-0 win after leading 1-0 at half-time. On 15th August they played Argentina for a 2-1 home victory after leading 1-0 at half-time, whilst on 22nd August they played Paraguay for a 1-all draw, having led 1-nil at half-time. On 29th August 1993 Colombia entertained Peru at home for a 4-nil victory after leading 2-nil at half time. There was a very conclusive result on 5th September 1993 when they beat Argentina 5-nil away from home after leading 1-nil at half-time. They finished first in Group A as a third South American team to qualify.

The late Andres Escobar

In the final competition in June in the United States they played Romania on the 18th and lost by 3-1 after being 2-1 down at half-time. The 22nd was an ill-fated day for Colombia because not only did they lose 2-1 to the United States after being 1-0 down at half-time, but this was a game of the ill-fated own goal by Andreas Escobar. The fate of this 27-year-old defender made worldwide headlines. In their final match on the 26th Colombia played Switzerland for a small consolation of an enthused hero after leading 1-nil but failed to progress to the next stage on the competition. Their final ranking was 19th place.

With this change of squad it will therefore be most interesting to have on view the potential Colombians of the next World Cup in 1998.

FEMALE SOCCEROOS ON THE WAY TO SWEDEN

In the early 1970s a group of schoolgirls staged a sit-in strike. This was a minor rebellion against the treatment of girls in schools. This in itself would have had little effect but two of the leaders wrote a book called 'Puberty Blues' which also ended up as a television serial. One of their major demands was that girls be allowed to play football and this was considered nothing less than preposterous.

It is not suggested that this item in itself was responsible for the development of sport in schools which gave girls a free choice so that they could participate in sports to which they had previously been barred.

When the authors of 'Puberty Blues' returned some 20-odd years later to the scene of the rebellion they found that things had dramatically changed.

Roo Ball or Walla Rugby are available to both sexes and played with quite some enthusiasm. In fact in a recent interview a young player of Roo Ball was only too willing to point out that the best player in each team was a girl.

Female soccer is booming in Australia with a 64% growth rate in the Sydney area alone. The Socceroos qualifying for Sweden, and Sydney being given the 2000 Olympics has meant that young females have a viable career path in the game.

A young player starts off playing a national modified game of 'Roo Ball' which is a six-a-side soccer with a smaller ball and smaller pitches. She then progresses through the club or school structure. The best young players are identified early and put into state based intensive training centres where specialised skilled coaching is given. These players form the base of the state representative teams for which a national juniors (under 16) and national youth (under 20) teams are chosen. Senior players progress to club football and a sign of progress is that elite male national league teams such as Marconi and Sydney Olympic have developed strong female teams. Marconi are the present national club champions and have four of the Female Socceroos squad, Tann, Bartlett, Watson and Haddon on their squads.

The Australian Women's National Team, known as the Female Socceroos, are on their way to Sweden after qualifying for the World Cup after defeating New Zealand and Papua New Guinea in the Oceania Confederation Series.

The Socceroos are coached full-time by ex-English professional Tom Sermanni. Funding from the Government is allowed for Sermanni to go full-time and off the pitch he is supported by his Executive Director Paul Turner who is prepared to finance, so necessary for a World Cup Campaign. Sermanni said, 'I'm really excited by the World Cup. We have beaten Russia and Japan and also top Danish side Fortuna but we are now really looking forward to taking on the big guns of USA, Norway and Sweden. In the next few months we are planning an intense preparation where I can finalise my squad. I have a good blend of experience, Wheeler, Tann, Murray, in the squad and some exciting youth, Salisbury and Casagrande. To be honest I have not seen a better female goalkeeper in the world than Wheeler.'

Step One in the Australian aim is to get into the top eight and qualify for Atlanta, then each game is taken individually as we are entering into the unknown. There is no doubt that any team that plays Australia will know they've been in a game and this World Cup will be the beginning of a great future for Australian Women's Soccer.

The Female Socceroos recently went on a ground-breaking tour to the USA to play against the Women's World Champions. They lost 5-0 and 4-1 to the World Champions, so Sarah Groube, Media Officer for the AWSA, took the opportunity to interview Coach Tom Sermanni on his return.

S.G. Despite the defeats was the tour worthwhile?

T.S. Undoubtedly! It showed our players why the USA are World Champions and the new levels of fitness and attitude that some of them have to aim for. It proved to some of our players that at the top level you have to be an athletic footballer. Skill is important but if you don't get the ball it doesn't matter.

S.G. What will our players be doing in the next 6 months?

T.S. Tracey Wheeler and Anissa Tann proved that they are world class players. Hughes and Casagrande continued to develop a deadly striking partnership which will score goals at the World Cup and tour 'discovery' Michele Watson, who will be putting pressure on midfield players.

S.G. The future? And your World Cup prediction?

T.S. More and more high intensity games are needed. Today's game will be like this as I believe world cup places are up for grabs. In the World Cup I believe we can come anywhere between sixth and eighth, and that will get us into the 1996 Olympics.
